The Human Electrical Forces

How They Control the Organic of the Body.

The electrical force of the human body, as the nerve fluid may be termed, is an ange cially attractive department of science, as it exerts so marked an influence on the lealth of the organs of the body. Nerve force is produced by the brain and conveyed by means of the nerves to the various organs of the body, thus supplying the latter with the vitality necessary to insure their health. The sure their health. The pneumogastric nerve, as shown here, may be said to be the most important to be the most important of the entire nerve system, as it supplies the heart, lungs, stomach, bowels, etc., with the nerve force necessary to keep them active and healthy. As will be seen by the cut the long nerve descending from the by the cut the long nerve descending from the descending from the buse of the brain and terminating in the bow-cles is the pneumogastric, while the numerous lit-tle branches supply the tle branches and stom-heart, lungs and stom-heart, lungs and stom-latity. When the brain becomes in any way dis-ach with necessary vitality. When the brain becomes in any way dispordered by irritability or exhaustion, the nerve force which it supplies is lessened, and the organs receiving the diminished supply are consequently weakened. Physicians generally fail to recognize the importance of his fact, but treat the organ itself instead of the cause of the trouble. The noted specialist, Franklin Miles, M. D., LL. B., has given the greater part of his life to the study of this subject, and the principal discoveries concerning it are due to his efforts. Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, the unrivaled brain and nerve food, is prepared on the principle that all nervous and many other valed brain and nerve food, is prepared on the principle that all nervous and many other distinctions of the nervecenters. THE HONOR OF DE LESSEPS.

A Compatriot of the Fallen Frenchman Says Plain Things About Him.

A French merchant who came to this country less than five years ago, and who has kept in touch with current events in France, says that the reports of a protest by the French people against the sentence imposed on Ferdinand de Lesseps are entirely unfounded. He asserts that the French newspapers are protesting against the verdict of the court, says the New York Sun, but that in this case, the press, instead of reflecting public opinion, is trying to form it. "You must not forget," said he,

that almost every editor and proprietor of a Parisian newspaper came in for a part of the pillage of the people's savings by accepting fancy prices as bril es for suppressing news. These men were, at least morally, accomplices, and their opinion of the sentence, therefore, is obviously biassed, and consequently of no ac-

"The real opinion we want is that of the people, of the 10 1,00) bourgeois who have been a's ost ruined by this immense jobbury, and of the families of those, more numerous than one would think, who have been driven to suicide. Their opinion will be found very different. These men cannot find words violent enough to assail the name of De Lesseps, nor any punishment too severe to be applied to him. And their opinion, in spite of what the . reach newspapers of to-day may say, will be that of history, for when light shall have been thrown on the truth concerning the Suez canni, as it has been on the dealings at l'anama. De Lesseps will be classed among the greatest robbers of modern times.

"As far as the Suez canal is concorned the end may have justified the means, for the time being, at least. But it is nevertheless true that as a result of the Suez thefts, which were even greater than those of the Panama, the tonnage tax. which ought not to have been more than two frames, is now ten frames for vessels passing through the canal. The way in which De Lesseps came to be connected with the construction of the Sucz canal was, to say the least of it. peculiar. Napoleon I. wanted to attack England through India, After making himself master of Egypt, and he conceived the idea of piercing the isthmus. He summoned a commission of engiroers from France with Monge and Laplace at the head of it. When the engineers arrived in Egypt and began their investigations, they found traces of the old canal built by Pharaoh, and they adopted the old line in the plan which they made for Napoleon. It was estimated that the sthmus could be pierced for 50,000,-000 francs, and the emperor ordered that the work should be begun. Shortly afterward, as is well known, he was forced to return to France. Kleber was assassinated, the course of political affairs in the empire was changed, and the work at Suez came to a standstill.

"Some years later, in the reign of Louis Philippe, Ferdinand De Lesseps was appointed French consul at Cairo, and by a curious streak of luck he discovered one day, in the local archives, the plan for the Suez canal which had been made by Monge and Laplace. He began his life as a pirate by appropriating these plans, foreseeing that some day he should be able to turn them to his advantage. When the second empire was inaugurated Napoleon III. married Eugenie de Montijo, who was a cousin of De Lesseps. This made an opening for the latter, and he submitted his plans to Napoleon III., with an offer to build the canal for 100,000,000 francs. With the assistance of his cousin, the empress, and of the khedive, Ismail Pasha, who came in for a commission of several millions it was possible to borrow 600,000,000 francs. The wildcat methods that were employed to raise this sum have become matters of history. Less than one-tenth of the money, however, was actually expended in the construction of the canal, almost all the work being done by the khedive's fellahin, whose only wages consisted of stripes from cowhide whips The other nine-tenths found its way into the pockets of De Lesseps, of the Montijo family, of the khedive and of other favorites of the empress.

"The success of the canal has kept these stories out of print. But when the memoirs of the principal characters of those times shall be published, after the usual delays in such cases, and when the truth shall have been fully told, history will class De Lesseps with such men as Cartouche De Madrin, and make him worse, perhaps, for the latter never stole money, but he usurped reputations and built up his renown on a foundation laid by others.

History of Tobacco.

Tobacco was noted by Columbus on his very first voyage. It was first cultivated by John Rolfe in 1612, and as early as 1619 a lot of 20,000 pounds was shipped to England. In 1732 a tobacco factory was started on the Rappahannock river, and about 1769 the first south of the James river was built in Mecklenburg county. In 1745 the exports from Virginia amounted to 42,841 hogsheads of about 1,000 pounds each, and increased till 1758, after which there was a decline until after the revolution. It is now grown in most of the southern states with Kentucky in

A Bit of Man's Comanity.

One of the incidents that illustrate the help ulness of numanity, when its Impathies are aroused, occurred in Dexter, Maine, the other day. A barber in that town, who last summer mortgaged his shop and tools in order to buy him a little home, has been unfortunate since that time, and so was unable to pay the note when due. Saturday the more are wa foreclosed and officers comoved the furniture and tools from the shop. A sympathizing crowd watched the proceedings and then went to work to repair the damages. One hunted up a barber chair, an ther razon, rings, etc., and by the time the contest ed goods were all removed, the larber was all ready to call for "next. The same evening a subscription was started and enough money raised to buy a new chair of the latest and most approved pattern.

Wrink ed Foreness

Wrinkled foreheads in children be token consumption, rickets or idiocy. Vertical wrinkles of the brow come early to men who do much brain work. Arched and crossing wrinkles about the lower and middle of the forehead betoken physical or mental suffering. Fine close-meshed wrinkles which cover the face, sign of age and decrepitude, are caused by loss of contractile nervous force and are prevented by hot bathing, friction and electricity.
